The billfish bite has been sporadic lately, but on the last day of the Ocean City Marlin Club Ladies Tournament, the crew on the "Big Oh" went 5 for 5 on whites, winning 1st place in the Billfish Division. The crew consisted of anglers Michele Burke, Jackie LeCompte and Jenn Aldridge from Ocean City, MD, Jennifer Fields and Debbie McDowell from Jupiter, FL, Capt. Ronnie Fields and Mates Tim Lanahan, Kevin Paul, Jimmy Fields and Jim Hughes. The white marlin, along with a couple of dolphin, were caught on trolled ballyhoo in the Washington Canyon and won the "Big Oh" team $10,080 in award money.

Double Lines

by Dale Timmons

Those of you who read my stuff year after year have probably read this before, but bear with me, because it is that time of year when I get quite a few questions about "all those little red worms" that appear in the bay and are seen swimming on or near the surface. Last week they appeared again, so here's what I know. In 2004, Keith Lockwood, of the Maryland DNR Fisheries Service, sent me some information about these worms, which are often called "May worms" or "clam worms." Officially, they are one of the "polychaete" worms, of which Nereis succinea is the most common. In the Chesapeake Bay, they swarm during spawning in the month of May during the dark of the moon, but it is usually at least June and mostly mid to late July before we see them in any numbers in the coastal bays. I suspect the water temperature must reach a certain point and coincide with the dark of the moon before the worms come out of the mud to spawn. They can grow as large as five inches, but are usually 2-3 inches, and Keith told me they "basically are very similar to the bloodworms that come from Maine and are sold for bait here in tackle shops." Keith added that "This time of year the worms undergo a metamorphosis to become a special sexual form called 'heteronereises'. They will swarm in a mating frenzy for several nights, mate, release their eggs and sperm and then die. As these worms swim about, they present quite a treat to any fish that happen to be about. They are attracted to light, so if you can get out on a dock with a light on it, you're in for a show." Al Wesche, a DNR biologist who retired several years ago, once told me that flounder especially like to eat the worms, as do stripers. Keith adds that there is a similar species of worm in the Florida Keys called the Palo worm that does the same thing this time of year, and he says tarpon also love to eat them, which makes the big fish especially susceptible to a long, reddish orange fly...

A few weeks back I quoted an e-mail from Joe O'Hara of Ocean Pines to federal officials who run the Marine Recreational Fisheries Statistical Survey (MRFSS), which is partly the basis for many of the size and creel limits under which we operate. Joe's letter then was about flounder numbers and how exaggerated they are, especially in the state of Maryland. Last week he sent me a copy of another e-mail to MRFSS officials in which he took them to task about the estimated number of "shore landings". I don't have room to quote the whole e-mail, but part of it concerned surf fishing statistics, which I will repeat. It would be humorous if it was not so pathetic.

"...The estimated number of surf fishing trips in July and August of 2007 was 103,588 [According to the MRFSS: my note]. Surf fishing in Worcester County is primarily a spring and fall activity. Surf fishing in Ocean City is restricted to early morning before the people arrive on the beach or after everyone leaves in the evening. I walk on the boardwalk most mornings. In the last 20 trips, I observed a total of 5 people fishing. If we use a generous estimate of 100 per day, Ocean City surf

Double Lines continued: fishing trips would be 6,200 for July and August. Most surf fishing occurs on Assateague Island. This is a large area, but the problem is parking. A few people park at the guarded beach areas and fish north and south of the swimmers. There is an off-road vehicle route, which requires a permit. The maximum number of vehicles permitted at any one time is 145. The campsites have parking. There are a total of 454 ocean side campsites in the Maryland State Park and the National Seashore. If we make the unlikely assumption that one person from each campsite fishes each day, and that the off-road vehicle area is at capacity with two anglers per vehicle and add 60 anglers for the guarded beach areas, the total would be 804 per day. The total for Ocean City and Assateague Island for July and August would be 56,048. This worse case scenario is 54 percent of the MRFSS estimate. One fifth of the worse case trips is closer to reality. We lucked out on the landing estimate. One summer flounder was landed at the Oceanic Pier. This pier is in the inlet, but the interviewer coded it as ocean. The result was 3,543 summer flounder surf fishing landings."

Like I said, it's humorous in an ironic sort of way, but sad just the same. This example of the inflated numbers coming from the MRFSS survey is what we are up against over and over again. Joe never received an answer to his first e-mail. This time, at least, he did receive a note from Steve Murawski at NOAA, which stated that they "have been working diligently on a response to your earlier e-mail." No, I'm not making this up, folks...

Have to congratulate angler Chris Toner and Capt. Mark Sampson of the "Fish Finder" for their recent Atlantic Coast division

Maryland state record 72-pound cobia (weight was changed late last week). The irony is that just the week before Mark and I were talking, the subject of cobia came up and he said he hadn't seen any yet. For years, the state didn't keep separate Atlantic coast records for cobia, and I'm confident the record will grow, especially if anglers begin to target them on shoals such as Fenwick, Isle of Wight, Great Gull or around wrecks or other structure. We always fished for them down at the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel with cut bait on the bottom. Usually bunker. We put a chum pot on the bottom and "chunked" occasionally. We fished either a three-way swivel rig or a fish finder rig with 5/0 to 8/0 beak style j-hooks or comparable circle hooks. Cobia also like a live bait (Mark's hit a live spot) such as eels, mullet, small bluefish, croakers, spot or bunker. Cobia will often come up to the surface near the boat, and it's a good idea to keep a rod rigged with no weight so you can flip a live bait to the fish if one does appear. They will also take lures, and down south a brightly colored bucktail jig in something like chartreuse, usually with a plastic twister trailer, is favored for sight casting to cobia, though they will also hit spoons or large plugs, even surface poppers. Cobia put up a good fight, and they are excellent eating fish. They can also be dangerous if you put one in a boat that is too green. Most anglers gaff them, but often a large net works better, and some folks keep a wet towel handy to throw over their eyes. This technique works well to calm them down...

Ocean City Fishing Report

by Larry Jock

Well, we are in the heart of the summer when bites turn on and off, new species arrive in our local waters and White Marlin Open week has everyone loaded with anticipation that the "big one" will hit the scales and make some lucky anglers a lot richer.

At the time this report was written on Monday evening, there are 298 boats entered into the White Marlin Open which is more than a lot of folks had predicted based on the state of our economy. This is only down 2 boats from 2008 and the total payout is expected to be over $2,000,000.

On the first day of the tournament, 175 boats hit the ocean. Dan Deer on the "True Grit" weighed the only qualifying white marlin, coming in at 67.5 lbs. Two bigeye tuna top the leaderboard in the Tuna Division. In 1st place is a 239 pounder caught by Doug Salter on the "Shadowfax". In 2nd place is a 207.5 pounder caught by Ed Gross on the "Foolish Pleasures". Leading the Dolphin Division is Rod Wittstadt's 37 lb. mahi caught on the "Two Days" with P.J. Aldridge at the helm.

Overall, it was a pretty good first day of what could be another exciting White Marlin Open. Scales open at 4 pm, so get there early for a good seat near the weigh station.

The billfish bite has been sporadic to say the least. The week started off with a bang when, on Tuesday, the "Billfisher" went 6 for 9 on white marlin in the Washington Canyon. Capt. Bruce McGuigan on the "Stag Hound" also recorded 3 white marlin releases in 19 fathoms, southwest of the Hot Dog.

On Wednesday, some whites were caught around the Rockpile and a few were caught near the Hambone.

We didn't see any more whites released until the first day of the Ocean City Marlin Club's Ladies Tournament held on Friday and Saturday. Only a few boats fished on Friday due to 10-foot seas, but a few whites were released. The "Fortune Cookie" released 2 while the "Last Call", the "Playmate" and the "Big Oh" each released 1.

The winning catch came on Saturday when anglers on the "Big Oh" went 5 for 5 on whites in the Washington Canyon. The "Legasea" recorded 3 white marlin releases at the south end of the Poor Man's Canyon while the "Reel Chaos" released a couple in the Washington Canyon.

On Sunday, most boats laid low, spending the day getting ready for the White Marlin Open. "That's Right" did venture down to the Washington Canyon where they had 1 white marlin release and lost a blue marlin.

COBIA

In last weeks issue, you saw the new state record cobia caught on the "Fish Finder" out of the Ocean City Fishing Center. The "official" weight of the fish has changed. When the fish was initially weighed, the fish tipped the scales at 72 lbs. By the time the DNR representative arrived at the scales and asked for the fish to be weighed again, it was down to 71 lbs. which, at the time, was deemed to be the "official" weight. I called Keith Lockwood at the Maryland Department of Natural Resources and explained the situation to him, and told him that if the DNR was only at the scales to verify the species, and not the weight, then the fish should be recognized at 72 lbs.

At the time, the paper was going to press last week, Keith said that the fish would be considered 71 lbs. until he could investigate further. I am happy to report that the weight of the fish has been changed to 72 lbs. and is now considered a state record in Maryland. All in all, it's not a big deal until a 71.5 pound cobia is caught.

Earlier in the week, anglers on the "Fish Finder" again caught cobia, this time two that tipped the scales at 31 and 37 lbs. Like the state record fish, these cobia were caught near Great Gull Shoal.

BLUEFIN TUNA

The bluefin tuna bite that had been the bread and butter of the ocean fleet so far this year has almost vanished around the Hambone. The only bluefin I saw this week came in on Friday when the "Marli" returned with a 65.5-incher from the Hambone. Word has it that the bite has moved up to the Lobster Claw, which is exactly what it did at this time last year when anglers in the White Marlin Open were steaming that far north, looking to catch a big one and win the Tuna Division.

YELLOWFIN TUNA

The yellowfin tuna bite is scattered up and down the line. On Wednesday, the "Miss Caroline" returned with 7 yellowfins caught at the Hambone. After that, boats that had yellowfins usually only had a couple, although we did see a better class of fish over the weekend. The "Reel Chaos" weighed a 57.8 pounder and the "Puddy Patrol" threw a 52.2 pounder on the scale at the Ladies Tournament.

On Sunday, I received reports of yellowfin up north. deep around the 540 line and in 20 fathoms inshore of Massey's Canyon and around the Chicken Bone.

WAHOO

We saw a couple of wahoo hit the scales over the weekend and I heard a report of wahoo mixed in with yellowfin in 20 fathoms, inshore of Massey's Canyon.

On Wednesday, "That's Right" boated a couple of wahoo near the Chicken Bone. On Friday, the "Jade II" caught a 41 pounder inside the Poor Man's Canyon and on Saturday, the "Last Call" weighed a 35 pounder. The largest 'hoo of the week came in on Sunday when Greg Garman and John Conrad hit the scales at Sunset Marina with a 69 pounder caught on a skirted ballyhoo at the Hambone.

FLOUNDER

Flounder fishermen continue to bend rods in the bay, although they aren't returning with many in the cooler. Throwbacks are still far outnumbering keepers. Capt. Nick Clemente on the "Get Sum" reported most of the action is still centering around Harbour Island and in the East Channel. Anglers finding the deeper holes and using live spot for bait are having the best results.

The larger flounder we see each week are still being caught by anglers hitting the ocean wrecks and reefs. The "Morning Star" returned with several large flatties over 5 lbs. last week with most hitting on chunks of clam.

Don't forget, in Maryland flounder fishing shuts down on September 13th, so get your fix now.

CROAKER

If you enjoy croaker fishing, now is the time to hit the bay and inshore waters around Ocean City. Anglers are filling coolers after drifting around the mouth of the Commercial Harbor, in the bay behind Assateague and in the West Channel off Gudelsky Park. Some of the headboats had good luck putting their anglers on schools of croaker in the ocean off 17th Street.

You don't need to get too fancy with this species of fish. Squid, Gulp! and Fishbites artificial baits are all you need.

DOLPHIN

By far, the most fish we saw hitting the scales last week was August 5, 2009 Coastal Fisherman Page 9 the fast growing, hungry dolphin. Catches were made from the Washington Canyon up to the Chicken Bone and inshore from 20 fathoms out to the deep. Most of the dolphin we have seen have been females in the 12 to 15 lb. range caught on trolled ballyhoo. We did see three larger ones at the Ladies Tournament highlighted by the 19 pounder caught on the "D.A. Sea" in the Washington Canyon.

STRIPED BASS

The bite around the South Jetty has mellowed. Some stripers are still being caught around the Rt. 50 Bridge at night. Anglers are having better luck with live spot (which are all over the bay) and bucktails. The full moon is this week, so the bite should be even better at night.

Well, I'm off to the scales of the White Marlin Open. It is sure to be a long, tiring and exciting week. If you get a chance, stop on by and say hello. If you work at Wockenfuss Candy, I love the chocolate covered strawberries.

See you at the scales!

This is what neighbors are for.

Pat Strine released his first white marlin, Mike Strine boated a dolphin and Nick Strine released a mako shark, all while fishing on the "Fugitive" with Capt. Wayne Lauman and Mates Josh Twilley and Benny Thumma. The fish were caught at the Tea Cup and in Massey's Canyon on trolled ballyhoo. Pictured at Bahia Marina.

Jamie Dressel of Ocean Pines, MD (center) celebrated her birthday by landing a 5 lb. 14 oz. flounder during a trip aboard the "Morning Star" with Anthony Kohler and Ashley Dressel, both from Ocean Pines, MD, Capt. Monty Hawkins and Mate Rich Silvani. The fish were caught at a natural reef where Anthony's sea bass ate a chunk of clam and the flounder hit on strips of squid. Pictured at the Ocean City Fishing Center.

Pam Meekins, Tiffany Reddish, Lisa Billings, Sherri Martinek, Tracy Caimi and Stephanie Powell teamed up to boat these two bluefin tuna while fishing on the “That’s Right” with Capt. John Oughton and Mate John Griffith. The double header tuna weighed 77 lbs. and 44 lbs. and were caught with only 30 minutes left in the trip. Pictured at Fisherman’s Marina.

It's summer time! The busiest time of the year in Ocean City, MD and vacationers and "hope to be" anglers have lots of questions. When the "out of town" calls or stops in to the local tackle shop or sends us e-mails, there are certain questions we hear over and over again. The most need to know question is "Where can we go fishing from the shore, and where can we park?" So let's get at it!

"Where can we fish from the shore and where can we park?"

The Ocean City Inlet is located at the southernmost end of Ocean City, Maryland. Anglers use lures such as bucktails, Gotcha Plugs, Spec Rigs, spoons, and swimming Shad Lures for bluefish, trout and stripers. Dig or buy sand fleas for tautog, triggerfish and sheepshead. Squid, mullet, or shiners are the baits to use for the flounder and bluefish. Live eels or live spot are the ticket for stripers. Parking is easy! There are 1,200 parking spaces in the Beach Parking Lot for a fee. Simply drive thru and get a ticket and pay when you leave. The only time parking at the Inlet is a problem is when there is an event. Then it is necessary to pay to park in one of the other municipal parking lots.

The Ocean Pier is a pay pier which runs parallel to Ocean City Inlet. Enter from the Beach Parking Lot and park close to the steps leading up to the pier on the north end of the lot. Use bloodworms for bait for spot, whiting and sand perch; squid or mullet strips for flounder, bluefish, shark and trout.

The Oceanic Pier is a pay pier which is located at the southernmost end of Philadelphia Ave. near the Inlet. Use shiners, squid or live minnows for fishing bait for flounder, bluefish and trout-- bloodworms or night crawlers for spot and other small fish. Fishing lures are the tackle to use at night. Cast Gotcha Plugs and spec rigs. To park, go to the Oceanic Motel Parking Lot, buy your pass and you will receive a parking pass to put in the window of your car. There is also a big (fee) parking lot a block and a half away at Worcester Street between Baltimore & Philadelphia Ave. on the left hand side of the highway when you are heading south.

The Route 50 Bridge, located 1 block south of 1st Street, provides excellent summer flounder fishing for anglers using frozen shiners or live minnows in combination with a strip of squid for bait. Worms are used to catch spot and other small fish. Bluefish hit fishing lures such as Gotcha Plugs or they take natural bait such as squid and shiners. Tautog and triggerfish like sand fleas fished near the pilings. Use fairly heavy fishing tackle on the Bridge since it's at least 30 feet off the water. Night fishing is generally good when you are working fishing lures beneath the lights. The best fishing lures on the Bridge are Gotcha plugs, Swimming Shad Lures or Swimming Shad Lures tied in tandem. Live eels are for fishing for stripers at night. You can park anywhere on the side street on St. Louis Ave. then walk up the stairs. You can also park in one of Ocean City's fee parking lots on First Street & St. Louis or cross over the Rt. 50 Bridge and there is some parking on the side of the highway. Go a little further and park in the Park and Ride parking lot for free.

In West Ocean City, you can fish off the beach at Homer Gudelsky Park. There is free parking right next to the beach. To get there, travel west over the Rt. 50 Bridge. Make a left on Golf Course Road (next to Royal Farms Store) and make your first left onto Old Bridge Road. This beach, with rocks along the shore, is a very pleasant place to go and a popular location for fly fishermen. Use cast shiners and squid combinations for bait or live minnows for flounder. Use worms for bait on small hooks for sea bass, croaker and spot. Use fishing lures early in the morning or after dark for blues and stripers. Anglers also cast Swimming Shad Lures, Gotcha Plugs, Spec Rigs, Mirrolures, bucktails and Rattletraps. Parking is limited here, so get dropped off or go early. You could also park in the Free Park & Ride, go out the back entrance, and walk to the park although it is a pretty good jaunt!

The 2nd thru 4th Street Bulkhead is a public area located on the bayside along the East Channel. Use shiners and squid for bait for flounder, bluefish and sea bass-- bloodworms for bait for Norfolk spot, sand fleas for tautog, triggerfish, sheepshead, and stripers. When the tide is running hard, fish straight down. When the tide subsides, you may cast out into the channel. Some anglers fish here at night for stripers, trout and bluefish with fishing lures such as bucktails, spec rigs, Gotcha Plugs, Rattletraps and Swimming Shad Lures. To park in this area, there are fee meters that accept credit cards. Parking is very easy and very close to the fishing!

The 9th Street Pier is a free public pier located on 9th Street and the bay. Use shiners or live minnows for fishing bait for flounder-- squid strips for sea bass and bluefish-- worms for Norfolk spot. You may also crab here with fair success with crab lines or collapsible crab traps. There isn't a parking lot for this pier so you have to find a spot on a side street.

You will find a free public bulkhead and pier behind Convention Hall at 40th Street. There is good crabbing at this location with crab lines or collapsible crab traps and fair fishing on the high tide. Use live minnows for flounder bait, bloodworms for spot and croaker bait. Light fishing tackle for a rod and reel is all you need here. Convention Hall has plenty of free parking. You can also park here and go elsewhere on the bus.

The Isle of Wight is a nice place to go. Cross the Route 90 Bridge at 62nd Street heading west. At the traffic light in the center of the bridge, turn left. This public area is good for crabbing with collapsible crab traps and for light tackle fishing. Use worms for bait to catch spot and sand perch. Use live minnows or squid for bait on the high tide for flounder or bluefish. Light fishing tackle is all you need here. There is plenty of free parking.

The 125th Street Pier offers a public fishing and crabbing pier just north of the Recreational Center at 125th Street. There's good crabbing with crab lines or collapsible crab traps and light fishing. It's best on high tide and only use small hooks and small sinkers. Use bloodworms for bait for spot, croaker and sand perch. Light or ultra light fishing tackle is all you need here. There's plenty of free parking. You can park on the side street at 125th and walk across the ball field. You can also park at 127th Street in the parking lot and follow the trail back to the pier. Yes, you have to walk!

Anglers can also fish off the beach. During the summer season, anglers are allowed to surf fish before 10 A.M. and after 5:30 P.M. (or when the life-guards go off duty.) Off-season, anglers are allowed to fish all day. Use finger mullet on a whole finger mullet rig to catch bluefish, squid bait for sharks and trout, bloodworms for bait for spot, whiting and stripers and lures such as spoons, Swimming Shad Lures, Hopkins Lures, Sting Silvers, Windcheaters and MirrOlures for stripers and bluefish. A surf rod and reel in the 8-to-12 foot range is all you need for the beach. For parking, find a spot anywhere on the side streets going up to the beach, except where the condos are between 94th and 119th Streets, as there is no parking on the east side of the highway. Just avoid this little stretch and you'll be fine.

You can also fish in the Assateague State and National Parks located at the very end of Route 611. Both of these parks have fishing areas for a fee. Four-wheel drive permits are also required to drive on the beach in the National Park. Use finger mullet on a whole finger mullet rig for bluefish, squid for an all around bait and bloodworms for kingfish, spot, and croaker. A surf rod and reel in the 8-to-12 foot range with a reel spooled with 15 to 20-pound test works well. There is plenty of parking once you pay to get into the park.

There are quite a few places to fish with convenient parking nearby.

Good fishing!

Lemon-Herb Grilled Shrimp

1 1/2 lbs. large unpeeled shrimp
1/2 cup fresh lemon juice
1/2 cup extra-virgin olive oil
2 TBSP. minced garlic
1 TBSP. chopped fresh rosemary
1 TBSP. chopped fresh thyme
Salt and pepper

Reserve 6 TBSP. lemon mixture for serving.

Place shrimp and remaining lemon mixture in a resealable plastic bag and shake to coat shrimp.

Refrigerate 1 hr.

Heat and oil grill to high.

Remove shrimp from marinade, wiping off excess.

Grill until opaque, 2 to 3 minutes per side.

Serve shrimp drizzled with reserved lemon mixture.

Serves 4.

Creamy Crab, Spinach & Artichoke Dip

2 cans artichoke hearts, in water

1 can water chestnuts, chopped

1 pkg. frozen spinach

3 cloves garlic, chopped

1/2 cup Parmesan cheese
1/2 cup Romano cheese
1 TBSP. parsley
1 TBSP. lemon juice
1 1/2 cups mayonnaise
1 to 2 cups of crab
Dash or salt and pepper

Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

Chop artichoke hearts, garlic, water chestnuts and crab into a large bowl.

Defrost spinach and drain very well.

Chop again and add to bowl.

Add the cheese, parsley, lemon juice and mayonnaise.

Add salt and pepper to taste.

Mix together and place into an oven safe dish, preferably a glass pie dish; top with more cheese if desired.

Bake for 20 to 30 minutes.

Grilled Tuna

4 to 6 tuna fillets

1 large onion, sliced

1 bottle of Italian salad dressing

Preheat grill; wait until briquettes are pure white before placing tuna.

Spray grill with cooking spray.

Pour the bottle of Italian dressing over tuna and onion.

Marinate for 10 minutes on each side.

Place tuna on grill, avoid pieces touching.

Brush on marinade throughout cooking.

Grill until well seared on one side; turn, baste, and cook until opaque throughout.

Place pieces back in marinade until serving time.

Serves 4 to 6.

Crab Cakes with Lemon Dill Sauce

3 TBSP. butter, divided

1 green onion, finely chopped

2 TBSP. finely chopped red bell pepper

1 clove garlic, minced

3 TBSP. heavy cream

1 TBSP. Dijon mustard
Cayenne pepper
1 cup bread crumbs, divided
1 large egg
1/2 tsp. minced fresh parsley
1 lb. crabmeat
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 TBSP. vegetable oil
Lemon Dill Sauce

Melt 1 TBSP. butter in a heavy skillet over medium heat.

Add onion, bell pepper and garlic; cook 3 minutes. Add cream, mustard and cayenne to taste and mix well.

Add 1/2 cup of bread crumbs, egg and parsley, mixing well.

Gently fold in crabmeat.

Form mixture into 8, 1/2 in. patties.

Combine remaining 1/2 cup breadcrumbs and Parmesan in a bowl; pat this topping onto both sides of patties.

Refrigerate 2 hrs.

Combine oil and remaining 2 TBSP. of butter in skillet.

Cook patties in hot oil-butter mixture for about 3 minutes per side or bake in oven at 400 degrees for 7 to 10 minutes, turning once.

Lemon Dill Sauce:

1 cup mayonnaise

1/4 cup buttermilk

2 TBSP. chopped fresh dill

1 TBSP. minced fresh parsley

1 TBSP. grated lemon zest

2 tsp. fresh lemon juice

1 small garlic clove, minced

In a small bowl, combine all ingredients; stir well.

Refrigerate until chilled.

Serves 4.

Delaware Fishing Report

by Rick Willman

Hi folks! The back bays are still full of croakers and are providing anglers with almost constant action. Bloodworms are probably the number one bait of choice, but the Gulp! swimming mullet in white or chartreuse also works great. The size of the Gulp! is basically too large as is, so the best thing to do is cut it into small pieces and bait your hook. A size #6 hook is a good one to use. These fish will provide you with plenty of action, and if you can catch a few in the 14-inch range, they make for great table fare.

Flounder action in the back bays is fair to good, but finding keeper-sized fish has been the biggest hurdle. Try to find the deeper holes and you will usually catch larger fish.

Inshore fishing has been getting better at Site #10 and the DB Buoy areas along with the

We don't see many cobia being caught in Delaware waters, but Bobby Haas of Boyertown, PA managed to land this 22 pounder while fishing with a bucktail east of Site #11. Weighed at Rick's Bait & Tackle.

Old Grounds. All three areas have provided some very nice flounder. Sea bass are still plentiful, but finding nice-sized fish has been tough. Once again, the Gulp! products have worked very well. To catch larger flounder, use larger pieces of bait.

Offshore action is still spotty with a few tuna and dolphin being taken at Massey's Canyon and the 19-Fathom Lump. The Hot Dog, Hambone and Chicken Bone areas have also produced some fish.

Near the Delaware Lightship, Greg Smith on the "Fired Up" had Brandon Smith on a trolling expedition where Brandon hooked into a 40-inch barracuda. Roy Rea on the "Out-Rea-Geous" fished between 90 and 200 fathoms in the Baltimore Canyon to score 8 nice dolphin and 2 white marlin releases. Roy then fished the east wall of the Elephant Trunk to boat a 123 lb. bluefin and release another white marlin. Capt. Bob Smallwood on the "Dana Lynn" took angler Trevor West to Massey's Canyon where Trevor boated a 50 lb. bluefin tuna. They later moved to the west wall of the Baltimore Canyon and went 5 for 8 on gaffer dolphin. Trevor's tuna was his first, Blake Hershelman got his first dolphin and Matt Magee released his first white marlin.

Some of the inshore catches included Larry Range's flounder ranging between 27 and 20-inches on the "Silver Bullet" using cut bait at the DB Buoy. Five-year-old J.J. Klosiewicz of Georgetown fished Site #10 with his father Tommy and his uncle Paul on the "Sea Hawg", where they all got their limit of flounder to 6 lbs. 10 oz. Bobby Haas, Greg Haas and Mike Binder of Boyertown fished east of Site #11 where Bobby used a bucktail to fool a 22 lb. cobia. Tom Breen, Keith Barnhart and Ian Barnhart fished the Old Grounds to boat 5 flounder to 5 lbs. 9 oz. using Gulp!, squid and cut bait. Elliot Cardano fished the DB Buoy on the "Sea Dation" with Steve Cardano to score a citation flounder of 8 lbs. 14 oz.

At Hook'em & Cook'em Bait & Tackle, Bert reported plenty of dolphin action offshore. The "Boy's Toy" weighed in a 60 lb. yellowfin. The "Out of Bounds" reported two blue marlin releases and some big bluefin.

Those soaking bait from the surf are scoring on croakers, kingfish, spot and blues, while a few anglers are catching sharks at night. Stripers, blues, flounder and croakers can be found in the Indian River Inlet. Dwayne Douglas caught two sheepshead of 12 and 8 lbs. on sand fleas, as well as a few drum and tog.

Dan at Henlopen Bait & Tackle mentioned that the good ole' croakers can be found almost anywhere. The flounder action has mostly been on the Reefsites. The larger flounder are there, and if anglers are willing to give up some rigs they will score nice fish.

From Bill's Sport Shop in Lewes, we got reports of good fishing in the area. Cary Rutherford was fishing with Harry Lewis at the Ferry Wall and nailed a 6 lb. flounder on a Gulp!. Michelle Lightcap used a Gulp! chartreuse swimming mullet while fishing in the Lewes Canal and landed a 21-inch flounder. Roger and Michelle Gross went to the B Buoy on their boat the "Hot Rod" and caught keeper flounder up to 23-inches along with some sea bass using squid and minnow sandwiches. Pam Dierolf caught 19 and 21-inch flatties at Massey's Ditch using minnows and pearl white Gulp! baits. Short stripers have been reported hitting plugs in the Indian River Inlet. Chuck Nagel of Bill's Sport Shop has been fishing Massey's on his time off and has caught 20 and 22-inch flounder. Sheepshead, tog and croaker have also come over the railing.

Matt Morris and friends trolled from the Hot Dog to the Baltimore Canyon on their boat, the "Called in Sick", and released a blue marlin estimated to be between 400 and 500 lbs. and had another blue marlin break off. They also hooked a white marlin and released a mako. The anglers ended up with a 40 lb. wahoo and 5 dolphin to 20 lbs. in the box. Trey Parker and crew on the "Playing Hookie" tagged and released a 78-inch white marlin at the Sausages and also had one bluefin tuna over 47-inches. They fished the Hot Dog and boated 5 gaffer dolphin and 2 bulls. Kenny G., Dave Majors, Bill Bishop, Bill Bishop Jr., Ron Moretti and CJ Sumser were fishing on the "Just Right IV" and trolled up 4 dolphin weighing up to 23 lbs. at the Tea Cup.

Joe Morris at Lewes Harbour Marina said flounder action was hot over the weekend. With good drift conditions on Saturday, boaters were able to effectively work structure, and bay reef sites gave up numerous flatfish. Sites #6 and 7 at Brown Shoal were popular, but flatties came from the #8 Star Site as well. Even though the majority of efforts were directed towards the artificial reefs, the open bottom produced fluke too. Captain Carey on the "Grizzly" ended up with 10 keepers while drifting near the A Buoy on Saturday. Joe Walker and his sons Joe and Michael caught their limit on structure at Brown Shoal and were back at the dock well before lunchtime. Joe Sr. showed the boys he's still got it by decking a 7.72 lb. citation winner. Captain Chet's group on the "Lil' Angler II" had 19 keepers up to 6.2 lbs. while rubble hopping. Ron Rowles landed a 5.95 lb. flatfie that was one of 11 brought back on the "Skipjack". Captain Pete's guys on the "Top Fin" landed 19 keeper fluke this past Friday. The "Martha Marie" returned with a dozen nice flounder, while Wade Bondrowski checked in a 5.95 lb. fluke he pulled off reef site #6. West Sarver scored a whopping 8.5 lb. doormat at Site #7.

Anglers reported success using a variety of baits including squid, minnows, shiners and smelts. Fresh cut strips of spot and bluefish were particularly effective. In addition to good fishing in the bay, ocean fluking was quite productive. Reef site #10 yielded flatties, as did bottom contours between the DB and DA Buoys. Flounder came from site #11 as well. Bouncing two to four oz. Spro Jigs along the bottom resulted in the downfall of many flatfish. Sweetening the lures with cut spot, smelt, sand eels or Gulp! Belly Strips was the key for turning on fluke. Croaker catches were very good in the Delaware Bay. Small hardheads were found just about anywhere, but larger croakers congregated around the concrete rubble of the Broadkill Slough Reef #5. Shore bound anglers got in on the August 5, 2009 Coastal Fisherman Page 31 croaker bite also, with fish taken from the Roosevelt Inlet and on the Cape Henlopen pier. Clams, bloodworms and Fishbites were favorite baits. Spot have become plentiful around the pier, in the Lewes Canal and in the Broadkill River. Fishbites and bloodworms also worked well for spot. Tuna were scarce this past week, but a few fish were reported between twenty and forty fathoms. Crews had a scattered pick on yellowfins between the Hot Dog and the Baltimore Canyon. Angelo and Anna Delapo, along with Arnold Azamar and Michael Davidson, teamed up for a great trolling trip outside the Tea Cup. They had bluefins of 136.5 and 70 lbs., and had 4 gaffer dolphin aboard the "Spoiled III".

'Til next week, have fun and be safe!

Chum Lines

by Mark Sampson

Last week one of my charter fishing clients (let's just call him "Joe") was not doing so well. The first clue of Joe's predicament was when he locked himself in the head for nearly half an hour. Eventually one of his buddies knocked on the door and asked him if he was OK. "I'm fine," Joe croaked from inside the enclosure in a voice that sounded not like it came from the 30-something angler who stepped aboard the boat that morning but from someone maybe three times that age. Joe wasn't "fine," he was sick as a dog. But when I suggested that the head was the worst place to be if he was seasick, his pasty-pale face snapped back, "I don't get seasick, my stomach is just all churned up from those damn bacon and eggs I had for breakfast!"

I resisted the temptation to ask Joe if he always has such a violent reaction when he eats bacon and eggs in the morning or if it was just a coincidence that the first time the breakfast food made him sick he was aboard a boat that was pitching and rolling on a choppy ocean. I figured I'd just leave it alone. Poor Joe wasn't feeling good at all and he certainly didn't need any needling from the captain - his fishing partners were already taking care of that. I was just glad he was headed out on deck, I was also afraid to go down and check on the condition of the head, but it had to be done. So as I've done so many times before, I took a deep breath, held it and stepped right in. Eeeeuck! "Hey Joe, you didn't mention that you had hash browns too!"

Joe, like so many fishermen and boaters just wouldn't admit that he was seasick. As if succumbing to such a condition was somehow shameful or would make him less than the man, the angler, or maybe the "tough-guy" he considered himself to be. But if it's true that seasickness somehow defines a person's position in the realm of outdoor activities then I guess I'm right there with Joe because, even though it's been a while, I can still remember how it feels to be hanging over the rail "yacking" into the big blue bathtub! Yea - I've been seasick before.

Fortunately, in a couple decades of running a charter boat I've never been "throwing-up" sick with clients aboard, but I can say that there have been a few very rough days when I didn't exactly feel up to eating my lunch. Some might not consider that being truly seasick, but when you figure that ashore I always eat my lunch, I can only blame the lack of appetite on the motion of the ocean! So does that make me less of a fishermen or some kind of sissy? I guess in some eyes it does, but as far as I'm concerned it-is-what-it-is, I've been seasick before and I might be again some day - so what!

I wonder why it is that so many more folks won't admit that they are or have been seasick. We recently had a fellow aboard who lasted 15-minutes outside the Inlet before he started "blowing chunks." It wasn't even all that rough of a day, but his stomach couldn't handle it and he spent the entire day going from laying prone on a bench-seat to hanging over the gunwale. Then, as with most victims, no sooner had we got back inside the Inlet than he was up on his feet smiling and chatting with his friends. When we got back to the slip I made the comment that he seemed to be doing much better now that we were in calm waters. But he quickly responded that he "wasn't seasick" but that he'd come down with some kind of virus that morning and it must have run its course and left him at the end of the day. RRRRIGHT!

Another fellow told me about a time when he and his wife were out on another boat on a day that was extremely rough. He said that the two of them were shocked that they were both sick for the entire voyage. When I mentioned that I could understand why someone would get sick on such a rough day, the fellow said, "no, we weren't seasick, we don't get seasick, we both had a bad batch of pancakes at the local diner that morning."

I didn't even know you could have such a thing as a "bad pancake". What in the heck is a bad pancake? Maybe one that's square rather than round! Whatever they are, I guess the couple found them that morning and paid for it by calling for "RAAALPH" all day long. No, they weren't seasick that day - Naaaaa!

Those of "us" who will admit to knowing what it feels like to be sick will tell you that it is an absolutely miserable feeling that is much worse than what one experiences when they get a cold or the flu. The good thing is that no matter how bad a person feels, the symptoms miraculously clear up the minute they get inside the Inlet or off the boat - usually. Rough seas on the ocean are the number-one culprit of causing seasickness but I've also seen plenty of folks "blowing grits" on days that were glassy calm. Last year, I think some kind of record was set when a young man stepped off the dock onto my boat, took about four steps across the cockpit and started "hurling" over the side!

A lot of folks will claim that seasickness is just a "mental" thing and in some cases I reckon it is, as with the little guy who no sooner stepped aboard the boat before he was "feeding the fishes," but I think it's been proven that most of the time it has to do with the inner ear, equilibrium and such. Over the counter remedies such as Dramamine and Bonine work for a lot of folks but they should be taken the night before and then all through the day (always follow the instructions) but some don't like to take them because they tend to make you feel drowsy. But then again, seasickness makes one drowsy as well so I'd say it's much better to be a little tired and not sick than tired and "barfing bullfrogs" all day!

Some big flounder have been coming off the “Morning Star” over the last month, and here are some more. Brad Allison of Bedford, PA caught a 24-inch, 6 lb. 4 oz. flounder on a chunk of clam, while Deborah Carroll of Hanover, PA caught two flounder weighing 4 lbs. 8 oz. and 6 lbs. 8 oz., also on clams. The fish were caught on an artificial reef with Capt. Monty Hawkins in the wheelhouse and Mate Tucker Colquhoun performing his sideshow.

Scopolamine that's administered via a little round patch that's stuck to the skin behind the ear. It's by prescription only but it seems to work quite well for most people - but not everyone. A few years ago a company came out with some kind of electronic wrist band that supposedly delivered a minute electric current through the skin that the manufacturer claimed would not only prevent but also cure seasickness. For a year or two they did a lot of expensive advertising for their product but at $75 - $130 each I don't think they sold too many of them and I haven't seen the electronic gizmos on the shelves or even in the magazines anymore so they might have gone out of business. My only experience with the product was when a client of mine came aboard with one on his wrist, an hour into the trip as he was sick as a dog and "barking" over the side. At one point he did pause long enough to look at his electric wristband and say, "$130 wasted and I'm still seasick!". At least he admitted it.

Learning to Use Your Radar Controls

Now that RADAR units are smaller, cheaper and less demanding of current, more and more boats are getting equipped with them. Like any piece of electronics, however, your effective use of them will depend on how much you understand their controls and how to apply them. Units will vary among manufacturers but they all have the same basic controls. Let's take a look at them:

GAIN: Use this control to increase the target return on your screen. If you adjust it too high, you will "flood" the screen with unwanted objects. On the other hand, if you adjust it too low, you will miss all but the very largest objects.

RANGE: Use this to select how far out you want to see. The best all around range is 6 miles when you are fishing or cruising and lower, down to 1/8 mile, when you are approaching the Inlet. You can use the upper ranges to look for storms.

BRILLIANCE: This one is a matter of personal preference. Generally, you will use fairly high brilliance but you may want to cut it down some when it is night or a very cloudy day.

EBL: This stands for "Electronic Bearing Line" and is a dotted line that starts at the center and extends out to the edge of the screen. You can move this line around to wherever you want it to be and it will read out the bearing of the line from your boat. This can be used to give you a bearing to follow to get to a point or to just determine exactly where an object is relative to your boat.

VRM: Similar to the EBL, the VRM (Variable Range Marker) is a circle that can be moved from the center outward to the display screen edge. You control the movement and wherever it stops, you will see the exact distance that is away from your boat. The EBL and VRM are often used together to determine exactly how far away and at what bearing an object is from you.

FTC: (Fast Time Constant) is a control that is used to eliminate unwanted targets often caused by heavy rain. Turn this control off unless you have heavy rain, as it will reduce targets.

STC: (Often referred to as Sea Clutter) is a control similar to FTC except that it knocks down returns from high seas and wave caps. As with FTC, do not turn this on unless you need to do so.

TARGET STRETCH: This control is used to exaggerate or magnify the return on your screen so that very small targets such as small boats do not get overlooked.

ECHO TRAIL: Called other names by different manufacturers, this is a control that places a trail behind the targets letting you know what direction they are traveling.

ALARM OR GUARD: This feature is used to set an alarm zone around your boat so that, even if you are not watching the screen at all times, you will be notified by an audible tone when a target moves into the zone area that you have selected.

ST BY/ TX: These mean "Stand By" and "Transmit". Your radar needs to be in TX before any images will show. However, you can save money if you do not leave your radar in TX position all the times. For every hour that your radar is in TX, it is firing the magnetron of the set. These magnetrons have a finite number of firing hours and then they will have to be replaced. The cost of replacement can be $350 or more.

Keeping your radar on and in TX at the dock is also a bad habit. If two sets that are close to each other happen to fire from one set into the other, they can damage the set.

There is one other item about radar that you need to keep in mind and that has nothing to do with controls. It is the "heading flash" that shows as a line or flash that goes from your boat to the outside edge of the screen and appears at the very top. It is supposed to represent the bow of your boat and its heading. It must be adjusted at the time of installation to reflect the position of your bow. Failure to do so could result in your hitting a target that you think you are going to narrowly miss.

Try some of these controls if you haven't already. Take them one at a time until you are familiar with them. Hopefully, you will get more enjoyment and use from your radar unit as a result.

Also use your set in the beginning during days with good visibility so that you can correlate what you see by eye to what you see on the radar screen. That way, the first time you have little or no visibility, you will be able to look at your radar display with confidence and see familiar objects.

Virginia Fishing Report

by Dr. Julie Ball

There should be no problem finding a species to target right now. Both inshore and offshore varieties are available. Inshore, cobia action continues to lure anglers to the lower Bay shoals. Chummers are scoring with a nicer class of fish using chunks of bunker, live eels, and live croaker fished on the bottom. The best locations for chummers lately are the seaside areas of Fisherman's Island, the Nine Foot Shoal, and Latimer Shoal. Sight-casters are lagging behind, mostly because of frequent cloudy and windy conditions. Pier anglers were thrilled this week when 3 big cobia hit baits off the Seagull Fishing Pier located at the 1st Island. Red drum are also taking cut bunker in these same areas. Black drum are still circling the islands of the CBBT, where a smartly placed shad or bucktail is the lure of choice.

Flounder action is hit-and-miss again this week, but anglers who put in their time are finding a few keepers. Most keepers are coming from drifting with strip baits and minnows. The Hampton Bar, Buoy 36, Back River Reef, and the Thimble Shoal Channel are proving the most action for drifters. Those dropping live bait and jigs on lower bay structures are also finding a few nice fish along the HRBT and the CBBT. Within Lynnhaven Inlet, Rudee Inlet, and Wachapreague, flounder enthusiasts are finding a few fish, but the action is generally slow.

The hunt for king mackerel is on. Unfortunately, the kings are not cooperating. A few small kings ranging from 10 to 15 pounds are coming from the CB line of buoys near the entrance to the Bay. Spanish mackerel action has also slowed up. Captain Steve Wray, skipper of the "Ocean Pearl" out of Lynnhaven, reports that the best Spanish bite is occurring off the Virginia Beach oceanfront, where the fish are hitting in 10 to 30-feet of water.

Some spadefish are schooling around near shore wrecks, the span of the CBBT, and the 3rd and 4th Islands. Most of these fish are weighing around 4-pounds. Plantation Light and the Cell are holding some larger fish, but getting them to bite is another story. Triggerfish are being caught on clams offered to spades near the islands. Triggers are fun to catch, and a good consolation prize.

Sheepshead action is good lately, with fish weighing up to 14-pounds taking fiddler crabs dangled along the Bridge Tunnel complex. Noel Dennis of Carrollton, scored with a trophy 10-pound sheepshead while offering a fiddler crab at the CBBT.

Decent tautog are also coming from the same areas, with some fish tipping the scales at 9.5-pounds this week.

Plenty of medium-sized croaker and nice spot are scattered around the lower Bay. The lower Bay inlets, the Concrete Ships, and the small boat channel south of the First Island are providing good numbers right now. Squid, shrimp, and Fishbites are all working well.

The folks at "Ocean's East 2" report that speckled trout made a modest showing within Lynnhaven, Rudee, and Little Creek Inlets lately. Most fish are just keeper sized, but a few 4-pounders are also in the mix. Puppy drum are going strong, with fish active in all the lower Bay shallows and Inlets, with the Elizabeth River, and Lynnhaven Inlet favorite hot spots this week. A few pups are pushing up to over 30-inches.

The folks at Chris' Bait and Tackle report that other than a few sightings, the tarpon action is still basically non-existent. Tarpon experts are speculating that the Virginia tarpon run may not materialize this season if it does not jump-start within the next week or so.

Amberjack are a no-brainer at the South Tower, where anglers are finding good numbers of nice fish. Spot and croaker make the best live bait, but take plenty.

Offshore, white marlin are available, with a few blue marlin and wahoo scattered in. Gaffer and bailer dolphin are also a good bet. Tuna is not the main item on the menu, but a few are coming in here and there.

The 13th Annual Virginia Beach Invitational Marlin Tournament hosted out of Fisherman's Wharf Marina was a big success. Boats released a total of 46 marlin, and boated several gaffer dolphin. The "Tippecanoe", skippered by Ernie Baily out of Fisherman's Wharf, took 1st place with 7 white marlin and a blue marlin, as well as 1st place in the Meatfish Division. Second place went to the "Gee Daddy", while the "Wahoo" secured 3rd place.

Jimmy Parrott, Todd Kennedy, Tom Turvey, Justin Shue, Chip Ridgely and Johnny Moore returned to the dock at the Indian River Marina with a 63-inch, 140 lb. bluefin tuna and 3 dolphin after a day spent fishing on the “Capt. Ike II” with Capt. Dave Collins and Mate Brian Joseph. The fish were caught at the Hambone and weighed at Hook’em & Cook’em.

Jim Senker caught and released a blue marlin, estimated to weigh over 500 lbs., while fishing on the “Extravaganza” with Billy Dewyer, Deane Steel and Capt. David Hillman. The blue marlin ate a horse ballyhoo with a blue and white Ilander at the Tea Cup and took 50 minutes to get to the boat. The captain reported having to back down on the 72-inch fish for almost 3 miles.

Alan Eigenbrade, Grey Eigenbrade, Bob Eigenbrade, Joe Yater, Rich Cohee and Mark Fisher returned to Bahia Marina with a 131 lb. bluefin tuna and 2 dolphin after spending the day fishing on the "Yellowfin" with Capt. Chuck Woodward and Mate Jimmy Ruppert. All of the fish were caught on trolled ballyhoo at the Hambone.

Eddie Hartwell of Middletown, DE released this white marlin while fishing on the "Salt Shaker" with Rob Burton, Bob Burton, and Capt. John Wooldridge (not pictured). The white marlin was hooked on a skirted ballyhoo at the Hambone.

Derek Dengler of Bel Air, MD released this blue marlin while fishing on the "D'Angler" with Chris Merchant and Steve Merther. The blue marlin hit a ballyhoo behind a squid daisy chain at the Hot Dog and took an hour to get to the boat.

Tommy Fowler of North Bay Marina caught this dolphin while on an overnight trip to the Washington Canyon with Bill Stephens, Wayne Hoffman and Noah Fowler. This was one of 12 gaffer dolphin the anglers boated during the trip.

Matt Berntheizel of Columbia, MD caught this 123 lb. bluefin tuna while fishing on the "Lisa" with Anita Butler, also of Columbia, MD, Capt. Stu Windsor and Mate Steve Moore. The bluefin, along with a dolphin, were caught at the Hambone and weighed at the Talbot Street Pier.

Katie Dienner of Gordonville, PA caught her first keeper flounder, a 19-inch, while drifting with shiners near the Rt. 50 Bridge. Photo courtesy of Capt. Mac's Bait & Tackle.

Brian Sheets and his son J.T. Sheets from New Providence, PA caught these flounder on live mullet in the Indian River Inlet. The largest flounder weighed 5 lbs. and was weighed at Hook'em & Cook'em.

Anglers have had good luck finding bluefin tuna on the inshore lumps as shown by Christopher Harmon's 135.4 pounder caught on a trolled ballyhoo at the Hambone. Christopher, from Lexington Park, MD, was fishing on the "Tranquilla" with Capt. Charlie Helmer and Mate Mark Stephens. Weighed at Lewes Harbour Marina.

It took 1.5 hours for Andrew Reinhart, Fred Engel, Austin Schreiber and Bud Schreiber to get this 130 lb. bluefin tuna in the boat after hooking it at the Hambone.

Aaron Miller from Sinking Spring, PA was drifting live minnows in the Indian River when he hooked into these two flounder, measuring 18.5 and 21.5-inches.

Catch a Poacher...

"Poaching" deprives the public of the opportunity to use and enjoy Maryland's natural resources. Preserving our natural resources for our present and future enjoyment is everyone's responsibility.

It's Illegal

Taking sportfish or game out of season * Taking of banned sportfish or non-game wildlife * Exceeding creel or bag limits (legal quantity in possession) * Taking game or sportfish with illegal methods or equipment * Taking fish outside of established hours

Reward

Citizens who supply the Natural Resources Police with information leading to the arrest and conviction of a violator will receive cash rewards. Be specific in the description of individuals. When possible, give name, addresses and vehicle descriptions. The anonymity of the information/caller is guaranteed.
